

4th District Bar Association 6.1 Challenge/Law Day 2016

It's time for the legal community's version of "March Madness" -- the 6.1 Challenge! This friendly competition was designed to encourage and formally recognize the pro bono and law related public service activities of the members of the Fourth District Bar. Firms, government and corporate legal departments and/or individual attorneys can compete by submitting qualifying pro bono hours and law related public service activities to the Idaho State Bar by 5pm on April 1, 2016. The applications will be judged by distinguished members of the community and awards will be presented at the Law Day reception. The 4th District Bar Association President Kristen Bjorkman Dunn, recently highlighted the importance of the 6.1 when challenge, stating, "Lawyers are uniquely positioned to expand access to justice to those who might not otherwise have it. Join the Fourth District Bar Association 6.1 Challenge and provide 50 hours or more of legal services for no charge to someone in need of legal advocacy. Taking the challenge is the best way to make sure you achieve it. Not only will your efforts make a difference to someone of limited means, but you will also inspire and motivate your colleagues."
