Idaho State Bar Honors Marcia Wing

BOISE - At its annual meeting in July, the Idaho State Bar honored Marcia Wing of Boise for her work on the Bar’s Professional Conduct Board, the body that hears formal complaints against attorneys. It can recommend serious sanctions against lawyers who break the Idaho Rules of Professional Conduct. She has served three terms.

Retired from Moreton & Company, she also has been active in Rotary, Learning Lab, College of Idaho Alumni, Junior League, Chamber of Commerce Leadership Boise, various insurance industry organizations.

“My parents always helped people who needed help, so I grew up with that ethic,” she said.

“I’ve been very blessed with family, good friends, and good health, so have felt it important to give back to the community when and where I can.”

Regarding public service, she said that “the needs are boundless, the community is amazingly generous, and there are always people who will step up to help.”
