Family Law Basics for the Non-Family Law Attorney

Presented by: Laura H. Cabanilla Esq., Utah

Discuss initial consultation, preparation of answer, counter-petitions, financial declarations, mediation and alternate dispute resolution, case management and trial. Discuss how to spot the “red flags” of a difficult client, and how to gracefully exit a case. Learn tips for presenting your case to a judge in a way that will gain credibility.

11:00 a.m. Break

11:15 a.m.

Military Family Law Basic Considerations: Pre-Filing Considerations (Should I take this case?)

Presented by: Mary Fran Quindlen, Esq. and Jeffrey Stephens, Esq., South Carolina

Understand a glossary of terms for the basic military acronyms that translates this foreign language. We’ll focus on the different Support Guidelines applicable to the individual branches of service and address the basic benefits dependents continue to be eligible to receive after a separation, but prior to the issuance of a Final Order. We will discuss TRICARE coverage pending the Final Divorce and how to calculate the income of the servicemember, including BAH, BAS, Special Pay and who receives it.

Federal v. State: Jurisdiction Issues and Service of Process on Military Members

Presented by: Mary Fran Quindlen, Esq. and Jeffrey Stephens, Esq., South Carolina

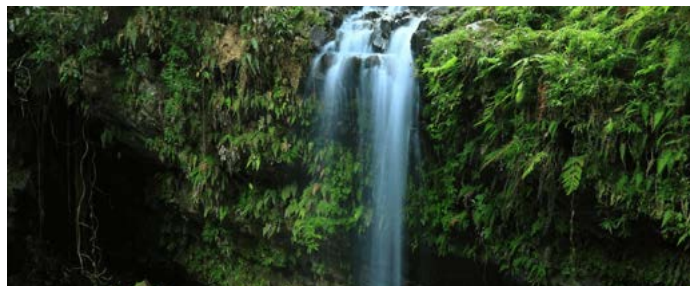

The Servicemembers’ Civil Relief Act (“SCRA”) has implications for service of process as well as jurisdictional issues with service on base. We’ll determine how to go about locating either party for service and will cover certain Hague Convention considerations regarding service and jurisdiction. Jurisdiction over the military servicemember’s military retirement will also be addressed.

Military Family Law Ethical Considerations: Should You Have Taken the Case (Ethics Credit)

Presented by: Mary Fran Quindlen, Esq. and Jeffrey Stephens, Esq., South Carolina

There are ethical considerations when taking a military family law case when you are not familiar with the Uniform Former Spouses Protection Act (USFSPA). Do you know what the 10 Year Rule really is and the benefits of a 20-20-20 spouse versus a 20-20-15 spouse? There are factors counsel should consider when payment is made directly from DFAS versus paid directly to the spouse, such as, whether or not you are qualified to provide tax advice. You’ll learn how to address allegations of abuse or adultery against the servicemember and the ethical considerations of raising or not raising these factors.

10:00 a.m.

Crossover: Civilian Criminal Law Considerations and the Impact on the Dependents

Presented by: Mary Fran Quindlen, Esq. and Jeffrey Stephens, Esq., South Carolina

This section will cover how to properly address an allegation of Domestic Violence or Child Abuse against the spouse, servicemember, or both. It will also address the services available from the military services to victims of Domestic Violence or Child Abuse, including Military Protective Orders and the Family Advocacy Program, and collateral career consequences to the servicemember from allegations of misconduct that arise in domestic disputes.

Domestic Violence – When It’s Part of Your Case

Presented by: Laura H. Cabanilla Esq., Utah

There are many challenges that domestic violence victims face in family law litigation. This session will address the many considerations that an attorney must address when violence is involved, whether you are representing a victim, or whether you represent the accused abuser. While laws regarding domestic violence and protective orders do differ from state-to-state protection orders, federal laws like the VAWA (Violence Against Women Act) have application. Discuss protective orders and other similar legal matters like stalking injunctions, civil restraining orders, protective orders in the juvenile court, child protective services and how this can affect the case.

1:15 p.m. Lunch

2:00 p.m.

Getting the Info You Need in Military and Family Law Cases Through the Freedom of Information Act

Presented by: Pete Sorenson, Esq.

Presented in this session are the three basic phases of FOIA: the request, the administrative appeal, and the judicial review, with special emphasis on family law and military/veterans matters. Information is crucial to the successful attorney. Without quality information, we’re often adrift. The Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) is increasingly used by attorneys to obtain the records that help lawyers win cases or assist clients in navigating complex negotiations. Making a good request is crucial and you’ll learn the ins and outs of a good request. We’ll learn more about getting the request fulfilled prior to a “final agency decision,” go over the administrative appeal and how to get the agency to reverse its prior decision., and go into major aspects of the third phase of FOIA, the judicial review.

After those basics, we’ll delve into the tested techniques for how to get the records you’re seeking faster, with less expense and how to avoid the traps -- and there are many -- in getting the records.

Improving Mental Health & Professional Competence in The Law

Presented by: Adam Markel

Leveraging the Power of Resilience Amidst Increasing Pressure and Constant Change

Unprecedented, chaotic, overwhelming, stressful. These are the words most frequently used today to describe our personal and professional lives. And the legal profession has seen more than its share of this pressure and change, resulting in a significantly higher prevalence of substance abuse and mental health issues. The impact? Many of our key performance indicators suffer - and not just productivity and profitability. This includes an increase in professional ethics and Rules of Professional Conduct violations.

Let’s face it though, this is not the first time - nor will it be the last - that we’ll be challenged on a mental, emotional, physical, and yes, even a spiritual level. Today’s imperative is for lawyers and legal organizations to cultivate the ability to become Change-Proof - to instead leverage these challenges to create long-term growth. Resilience is the foundation, both individually and organizationally, for maintaining or increasing the practicing attorney’s professional competence, skills and performance. Research shows that when we develop, practice, and invest in the skills of resilience, the results are improved physical and mental health, innovation, performance and even happiness.

Having built a multi-million dollar firm and practicing law for more than 18 years, Adam Markel knows first-hand the challenges the legal profession faces. As a bestselling author, executive mentor, and resilience researcher, Adam knows how to leverage uncertainty and strengthen your resilience in order to show up in the best way possible, both personally and professionally.

Join us for a high-energy, interactive talk in which Adam teaches tangible, impactful strategies and practices to create and maintain a peak performance state while practicing law.

Impact of Mental Health and Substance Abuse in Family Law Cases

Presented by: Laura H. Cabanilla Esq., Utah

Family law cases can often be complicated by mental health and substance abuse issues. These issues can affect your case, not only in adding extra complications, but can cause difficulties in your professional relationship with your client. In a negotiated resolution these issues can be positively and appropriately addressed; you'll be provided the proposed language for a stipulation addressing drug testing, visitation, etc. Sometimes these issues lead to the appointment of a Guardian Ad Litem or the appointment of a Custody Evaluator to address the best interests of the children. We will discuss the differences between these professionals, as well as discuss the process and when this might be appropriate in your case and what benefits your case may achieve.

11:15 a.m.

Legacy Retirement vs. Blended Retirement System (BRS): What and Why Do You Need to Know the Differences

Presented by: Mary Fran Quindlen, Esq. and Jeffrey Stephens, Esq., South Carolina

There are detailed differences between these two retirement systems and which servicemembers are eligible for each type of retirement. We will examine TSP as a marital asset, military retirement as a marital asset, VA income considerations, and Survivor Benefit Plan (SBP) considerations. MyPay access, TSP.gov access, High-3 pay calculations, SBP premium calculations, and other financial issues will also be covered.

12:15 p.m.

Litigating the Military Retirement as an Asset and Drafting Considerations for the Final Order (When to Call for Help)

Presented by: Mary Fran Quindlen, Esq. and Jeffrey Stephens, Esq., South Carolina

This section will cover McCarty v. McCarty, Mansell v. Mansell, and Howell v. Howell. There is model language provided by DFAS for Orders that require direct payment to a spouse of their retirement pay as well as garnishment for alimony and/or child support. We'll address VA benefits and pay and indemnification clauses as well as address enforcement provisions when payment is made directly to the spouse and SBP language, Post 9/11 GI Bill language and SGLI/VGLI.

Practicing Law & Loving Life: Choose Both

In times of dramatic change, burnout, fear and stress - the idea of coming into each day with energy, let alone happiness, seems impossible. This is especially the case in the legal profession which is defined by constant adversity and challenge. However, Adam Markel can show you how to make it so. What Adam discovered in his research and work is that when life gives us big waves - we learn to swim. The waves make us stronger, more resilient, and even able to enjoy the rush of the water because we understand our own capacity.

In this energetic and inspiring talk, Adam provides an active challenge for attendees to make changes for the better to go beyond the day-to-day struggles and choose happiness. Adam's insightful stories based on his own experience as a lawyer and tangible thought-provoking actions will empower you to unlock personal and professional sustainable success, despite the complex changes, stress and uncertainty of the legal profession.

Adam works with corporations, associations and executives to tap the power of resilience to master the challenges of constant change. His TED talk "Doing this for 10-seconds can change your life!" provides an insightful perspective on a key element of creating a fulfilling life.

Adam Markel, bestselling author, keynote speaker and resilience researcher, guides individuals and organizations to tap the power of resilience to master the challenges of constant change.

With 18 years as a trial attorney building a multi-million dollar enterprise and 10 years as the CEO of a leading personal development and business training company, Adam has much to share about resilience, culture and change. Yet, some of his most enduring lessons came from his years as an ocean first responder - a life and death environment where Adam learned the importance of cultivating high performance capacity and impeccable teamwork.

In his latest book, Change Proof, Adam shows how those principles of resilience are equally relevant today for any business that wants to move beyond managing change to actively embracing it and using times of uncertainty, crisis, and chaos to create opportunities and stimulate individual and team growth.

As one of Huffington Post's top speakers to see and the #1 Wall Street Journal bestselling author of Pivot, Adam's messages have inspired tens of thousands worldwide. His keynotes, corporate workshops, and business mentoring integrate practical business strategies, personal development insights and a unique delivery style to create a high-energy and impactful learning environment.

Adam is currently the CEO of the More Love Media Group, a TEDx speaker and influencer, and host of The Change Proof Podcast, facilitating insightful discussions with business leaders and social innovators and exploring breakthrough strategies to fully embrace an uncertain world and build the resilience required to become Change Proof.

Cabanilla

Laura Cabanilla attended college at Brigham Young University in 1980, graduating with a Bachelor's degree in English in 1986. During college she joined the U.S. Army Reserve to fund her schooling and because of her desire to serve her country. She was the only female cadet enrolled in BYU's ROTC program at that time, and the second woman commissioned through the program.

In 2010 Laura was deployed to the Middle East in support of Operation Enduring Freedom; while she was based in Kuwait she travelled frequently to Iraq, Bahrain and Qatar, experiencing the Arab Spring first hand. She is a 1994 graduate of Brigham Young University's J. Reuben Clark Law School. She previously worked as a prosecutor with the Utah County Attorney's Office where she prosecuted many high-profile criminal cases. In 2000, Laura Cabanilla joined the law firm which is now Esplin|Weight.

Laura Cabanilla is a partner with the firm and shares in the ownership of the historic building where the firm is located. Her practice consists primarily of family law cases (including appointment on children's advocacy cases) and criminal defense. She previously served on the Provo City Council which is a four-year term. Currently Laura serves on several boards including Utah Pet Partners (an organization that trains handlers and their therapy animal to conduct therapy visits at area hospitals and other organizations); Provo City Farmers Market; and Provo City Parks and Recreation Board.

She is married to Dave Cabanilla, an airline pilot with Federal Express and local land developer. They have four adult children: triplets: Paige, Cliff and Sierra and a younger son Marc. Laura and her husband are the happy grandparents of 8 grandchildren. In her spare time, Laura oil paints and breeds Cavalier King Charles Spaniels.

Quindlen

Mary Fran Quindlen holds two bachelor's degrees in History and English from Rutgers University. She received her law degree from the University of South Carolina in 1998, where she was a member of Women in Law and the Phi Alpha Delta Fraternity.

Following her admission to the South Carolina Bar, Mary Fran practiced as a Marine Corps Judge Advocate serving as a Legal Assistance Attorney and Defense Counsel. She continued to serve in the United States Marine Corps Reserve until May of 2006 when she resigned her commission as a Major. After her release from active duty in 2002, Mary Fran became an Associate at Harvey & Battey, P.A. in Beaufort, South Carolina. She worked as their family law practitioner until 2005 when she opened her own practice in Beaufort. Mary Fran's practice is concentrated in the areas of Military and Family Law, to include custody, visitation and divorce.

Mary Fran is a Fellow in the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers, the International Academy of Family Lawyers, and serves on the South Carolina Bar's Fee Dispute Resolution Board. Mary Fran has been qualified as an expert in South Carolina Family Courts regarding military matters related to divorce and she teaches military family law CLE's around the country.

Sorenson

Peter Sorenson has been a licensed attorney for over 40 years tried over 200 jury trials and has been a small-town general practice lawyer and is now a national expert on the Freedom of Information Act. He's a former member of the staff of a United States Representative in Congress in Washington, DC where he worked on a variety of natural resource issues. He served as a special assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture, also in Washington, DC. Following his DC experience, he served as a prosecuting attorney and as a criminal defense attorney. He switched his practice to toxic torts and environmental law and worked on Clean Air Act, Clean Water Act and Safe Drinking Act matters. During these 15 years he lectured throughout the United States at over 20 law schools, on both environmental law and attorneys' fees. After this portion of his career, he switched back to public service, serving two terms as an Oregon State Senator. He served in other elective offices and he also taught legal ethics at the University of Oregon School of Law.

Six years ago, Peter switched back to law and has concentrated exclusively on the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). His practice is now devoted entirely to the FOIA and his judicial reviews are filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in Washington, DC. He represents computer companies, journalists, nonprofit groups, physicians, and others on FOIA cases.

He is a national expert on not only how to obtain records from the Federal government but also on how to force the government to pay the reasonable attorneys' fees for the difficulties involved.

Stephens

Jeffrey Stephens is originally from Macon, Georgia. Jeff holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Georgia Tech, and a Juris Doctorate degree from the University of Tennessee. He served as an enlisted Marine Corps reservist in college and law school and was later commissioned as an officer. Jeff spent 10 years on active duty as a Marine Corps judge advocate, finally retiring from the Marine Corps Reserve after 22 years of service in 2016. Jeff's military assignments included serving as a prosecutor, defense counsel, and recruit training company commander at Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island, assignments as an Appellate Defense and Appellate Government attorney with the Office of the Judge Advocate General of the Navy, and deployments to Fallujah, Iraq and to Bahrain as an operational law attorney. After leaving active duty, Jeff served for 5 years as an assistant solicitor for South Carolina's 14th Judicial Circuit, prosecuting crimes committed in Beaufort and Jasper counties. He served for 3 years as a Beaufort County assistant public defender and has been an attorney with the Quindlen Law Firm, P.A., since 2012. Jeff and his wife have 4 children who are almost all out of their house in Beaufort, SC.
